Intimate surroundings are important to Kalenka. She presents her objects of plain or coloured newsprint in her home. Kalenka wants art to be palpable and affordable. Visitors are invited to touch the objects; some of the objects can be rearranged, folded or spread out. Visitors may come alone or with friends to exchange associations, discuss art, and inspire one another: art as catalyst for genuine encounters.

Concerts and plays have been performed in private spaces. Kalenka has now discovered the private space for the visual arts. The positive reception will motivate Kalenka to extend and open up her house for a wider public.
